

Gov. Brown seems to have anticipated the thing was loaded.

This people of the State of Kentucky will be agreeably fooled some of these days.

This Monongahela River coal miners' strike is now a marvel of endurance, whatever else may be said of it.

Bismark will celebrate his seventy-eighth birthday on the 21st of April. The old gentleman should not despair.

adjoining citizen of Earlinton.

Act not unwisely nor too hastily in the matter of casting your vote on Saturday.

The opposition is wholly antagonistic of the present management of affairs. Not made upon grounds of inefficiency, but prejudice, and to satisfy personal animosity in a few from whom the present excitement originated.

Let not Earlinton abandon her reputation she now enjoys of being a law abiding city of the highest character, due largely to the untiring efforts of the present police marshal, aided by the Board of Trustees, which for years, has been re-elected without opposition because of the wisdom of public spirited people. Time change—so do some people, but the municipal government of Earlinton must go on thundering on down the ages of time one year longer, at least, unchanged.

LITERARY NOTES.

Hilda's charming story by Margie is a feature of the April number of Fetter's Southern Magazine (Fetter & Co., Publishers, Louisville, Ky.). The scenes are laid among the mountains near Chattanooga.

My Two Cousins from the French of M. de Marivaux, is a strange story told in this popular author's inimitable style and is illustrated with some drawings from the pen of Mr. Charles Brenner.

The poetic contributions to the April number of Fetter's Southern Magazine (Fetter & Co., Publishers, Louisville, Ky.) are unusually good. George Griffith Fetter, Helman Wilson, W. H. Field, Will E. Thompson and St. George Dine are among the contributors.

An Art Cover in Seven Colors. On Sunday, March 12, "The Sunday Pictorial," started a feature that will mark its place in American journalism.

Willie Floebs upon a pleasant time in Charleston, last day week. Mrs. Chas. Chappell, of the Charleston neighborhood, made Italy a visit, this week, and brought home "product" which she exchanged for good.

The farmers of this week of the woods are again at it and are very busy.

The heavy rain and high wind was the cause of the prayer meeting at St. Barnabas' last Thursday night being left slightly anted.

Somewhat less alluded to Carmichael as today's employment. The work like the first, only a little smaller.

John Ray thinks it is very hard to work all the week and then be kept at home with sick headache on Sunday.

The size of the trees in the woods, and through our windows last Thursday day.

John Ray has been visiting the Lucy boys and reports having a good short vacation.

There seems to be a slight hitch as to what hour is the most desirable time for covering Sunday school, whether morning or evening.

Mr. Frost was providentially hindered from his last regular appointment with us.

Tom Biley and his good wife have taken up their abode in Hamlet Station. They look a good deal.

Jack Jackson, never behind this week, was there on time again last Sunday. "Howdy, Jack."

Miss Bell Lucy has been visiting her aunt at Barco's. She returned home with her father last Saturday.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

[From Our Regular Correspondent.]

Washington, March 27. The Mecca of that vast Army of Micawber, otherwise known as "office boys," the Capital is at this time.

In a couple of months Senator John Sherman will have attained the age of three score and ten and which his locks are a sort of silver certificate.

WHISTLE POSTS. A week on a branch of the L. & N. chief clerk, caused by the engine and several cars leaving the track, resulted in the engineer being badly hurt. All the passengers escaped injury.

At Hopkinton, last week, in the case of Joe Slaughter's driver, the L. & N. R. R. conducted the jury found for the defendant. Slaughter was killed in the wreck at Moore's station, on the evening of April 27th, last. His administrator sued for $5,000 damages.

The question involved was as to whether Slaughter was a regular passenger or whether he was being his way, and the jury were to decide. The night of the wreck, Slaughter was on the latter character of passenger.

The bill introduced the other day in our State Legislature prohibiting the use of the trolley for the purpose of carrying passengers, will be hailed with delight by all railroad companies that are now greatly alarmed at the prospect of unprincipled owners of worthless stock who take the advantage of the present law to the expense of the "valuable critics" by putting them on a diet of railroad iron and cross ties.

Engineer John Thomas took a cold plunge last Thursday night. While coming South on No. 57, he fell from the trolley, and, proceeding cautiously on the lookout for fallen timber, which was thought to obstruct the right-of-way, the pilot of his engine came in contact with a fallen tree.

Recent experience at Lynn, Mass., indicate that electric locomotives operated by the trolley system are entirely practicable. The chief difficulty in the way of their general adoption is the great cost of establishing long distance lines.

The action of Judge Ricks of the United States District Court in declaring that railway companies have no right to stop work without giving preliminary notice of their intentions raises a legal issue of the first importance.

Gen. Raun, before resigning the Commissioner of Pensions, addressed a letter to the Secretary of the Interior, inviting attention to the loss sustained by the Government by the use of the Pension of Civil War veterans.

Considerable opposition has been developed to the extradition treaty recently concluded with Russia, and the pressure on the President and the Secretary of State is so great that there is more than a probability that the proposed exchange of ratifications will be postponed in order to allow the present administration more time to consider the question before the compact is an accomplished fact.

The Hering Sea controversy may not be as interesting as a sensational world, but it is simply supplied with "to be continued" attachments.

MORTON'S GAP.

The party at Mr. F. B. Harris' was a grand success.

Dr. J. E. Williams visited his father, near White Plains, last week. Mr. Terry, president of the Morton's Gap, was in our midst Sunday.

The engine at Cullen & Wallace's plant will not run on a running day, evening and landed the cylinder. Happily no persons were injured.

An effort is being made to build a bridge over Transylvania river at Bell. The new bridge, as well as large it to the country in the mountains and winter quarters, would be very materially helped by the building of such a bridge, and can hope the matter may be presented to a successful termination.

The installation of the lodge of Knights of Pythias here last Thursday has been a success. A large number of the brethren from Henderson, Sturgis, Duane, Madisonville, Sevier and Earlinton. The membership here, we understand, numbers twenty-four and the prospect is favorable for building a new lodge.

Mr. S. L. Williams, who lives three miles east of town, was stricken with a stroke of paralysis on Sunday afternoon. He was glad to state, the paralysis was of short duration, and he was much improved at last. He is now a recovered man. Mr. Williams is quite an aged gentleman, and fears were entertained of his recovery.

WHAT SOME OF THEM SAY.

Frankly Admitted.

The Capital removes tell us that Frankfort is in the hole; that it is surrounded by hills, and that it can only escape from it by swimming a river or crawling through a hole in the ground.

Writing the Goddess.

The fact that David B. snails causes the State of Kentucky to think better of him.

Mr. Smith's Views.

For his first time, the war there are no colonels in Georgia they are all in Washington.

Don't Judge a Book by its Cover.

There may be a good deal of intelligent humanity in Kentucky and Georgia and Texas, but Massachusetts is beginning to wear a smile of serene superiority.

Where Democracy Resides.

Cleveland tells the hungry crowd to go home and the crowd replies: "Home is where the cows are."

Beware of Quackery.

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of small and complicated machinery connected with the human system, when entering it through the mucous membrane, such as the nose, mouth, throat, etc., except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, it is not to be used.
